IMPORTANT:

APPLY for GRADUATE STUDENT Travel Waiver if you are planning on traveling during COVID-19 pandemic UW Travel restrictions: <https://www.washington.edu/globalaffairs/global-travelers/warnings-waivers/>
If you require a graduate student travel waiver for travel during UW travel restriction and are wanting to travel to during the Summer, please begin the travel waiver process immediately, including completing the Independent learning program form by April 15. (Late applications maybe accepted but could include penalty). Once accepted into Independent Learning you may delay "confirming" your Independent Learning application until you are sure you have the funding support to participate in your project.

Travelers for quarters at times other than summer under UW Travel Restriction should begin the travel waiver proces no less than 45 days before proposed travel to have adequate time to process your request.

This requirement for travel waiver applies to ALL graduate students travelling outside the US, including those to your home countries but those travelling to home countries will not need the GPC or Chair letters to complete their travel applications.

DGH Funding for Fieldwork Application 2021

DGH FUNDING FOR FIELDWORK APPLICATIONS AND WORK DURING THE PANDEMIC

Dear Applicant:

Over the past year, due to the coronavirus pandemic, fellowship recipients have had to adjust their project goals and travel plans. We have done our best to accommodate student work-from-home projects so that students can continue their work with faculty and partners worldwide. In light of the fact that travel restrictions are still in place and the fact that there are increasing vaccination campaigns here in the US and around the globe, we want to set expectations for applicants to the DGH and SPH funds that provide short-term project support for our graduate and professional students.

This year we will accept both projects marked, “Work-from-Home” and projects that involve travel. Please use the following information to understand the use of Fellowship funds at this time and the impact of COVID-19 related restrictions. Students applications will be reviewed by fellowship faculty committees and the most competitive applications will move forward for short interviews with the faculty committee. Awardees will be required to attend an online orientation on Sunday, May 23, 2021.

UW Travel Restrictions: <https://www.washington.edu/globalaffairs/global-travelers/travel-restriction/>

“All official travel outside the U.S. by University of Washington employees and students is restricted until further notice. Faculty, staff and students may apply for an exceptional waiver to the current official travel restrictions. Follow the steps outlined here to request a waiver.”

Note that the travel waiver process for graduate students involves signing up for the Independent Learning program through UW Study Abroad. All students traveling abroad, even to their home countries, must follow the graduate student travel waiver process during UW travel restriction. For students interested in virtual opportunities provided by UW Study Abroad, including internships, please visit their website: <https://www.washington.edu/studyabroad/>

While the UW is under the restricted travel policy, we will accept both “work from home” and travel-related applications for the Global Mental Health, GO Health, Thomas Francis, Stergachis, and Povey Fellowships. Student’s proposing projects that involve travel outside the US, MUST RECEIVE A GRADUATE STUDENT TRAVEL WAIVER in order to be able to travel and use the funds awarded for their original purpose and project. If a student proposes to travel and is not approved for the travel during UW travel restriction, they must 1) postpone to a time when UW travel restrictions are lifted; 2) redesign the project to work from their home and collaborate with colleagues virtually; or 3) rescind their award. Please apply for the travel waiver no less than 45 days prior to your intended travel dates; applicants for Summer quarter should apply for the graduate student travel waiver concurrently with submitting this funding application as the process involves applying through the Independent Learning Program with a Summer application deadline of April 15.

Work-from-Home project budget guidance:

For all the awards in this application, work from home budget does not include travel, or coverage for living expenses or personal expenses during the time of the project. Budgets submitted should be designed to ask for amounts needed to cover project related expenses including project supplies and support for colleagues abroad who are assisting you with the project such as data collection or translation.

*This year we will accept email statements of commitment from international partners if the form is too cumbersome.

DGH Funding for Fieldwork Application 2021

February 3, 2020

Dear Graduate Student, Professional Student, or Medical Resident Applicant:

The Department of Global Health has multiple ways for a student to fund their fieldwork experience each year. In order to streamline the process, we have created this Application for all funding and fellowships for the University of Washington, Department of Global Health-administered funds and programs.

Students or medical residents, where eligible, are encouraged to apply for more than one fellowship, but are only eligible to receive one award per application cycle. If a student is awarded and accepts a Fellowship, they must immediately withdraw their applications to other DGH fellowship or funded programs. Fellowship recipients must meet all program deadlines and program requirements, including attendance at a MANDATORY VIRTUAL pre-departure orientation on Sunday, May 23, 2021.

Common eligibility criteria:

- Graduate or professional students enrolled in a full-time University of Washington degree program
- Undergraduate students enrolled in the Public Health-Global Health Major or the Global Health Minor are only eligible to apply for Warren George Povey Endowed Fund for Global Health Fellowship
- Medical residents enrolled in a University of Washington residency program are only eligible to apply for Global Opportunities (GO) Health Fellowship and Global Mental Health Fellowship
- Medical and post-doc fellows are NOT eligible to apply for these awards
- Good academic standing
- Not currently receiving another DGH award or fellowship for the same time period or for the same program or fieldwork experience.

Please review the criteria for each of the awards to ensure that you have submitted the proper documentation to complete the process. All documentation must be submitted via Google Form by 5 p.m., Monday, April 19, 2021. <https://forms.gle/8z1CWUTqvLtirG9E8>

Please contact me at dwade@uw.edu with any questions you may have.

Director, International Experiences and Career Resources

FELLOWSHIP DESCRIPTIONS & ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

I. Warren George Povey Endowed Fund for Global Health Fellowship

The purpose of the Warren George Povey Endowed Fund for Global Health Fellowship is to provide financial assistance to students at the University of Washington to help support their travel or other academic goals in global health. The funds have been generously provided by the family of Dr. George Povey and other donors to honor his contributions to global health. George was an uncompromising and tireless clinician, teacher and activist in promoting social justice, gender equality and maternal health in resource-poor settings. The award will be based on evidence of commitment by the applicant to these values that characterized the lifetime of Dr. Povey.

First preference will be given to students who are full-time graduate students working toward a degree in the Department of Global Health, or undergraduate students enrolled in the Public Health-Global Health major or Global Health Minor. Preference will also be given to students studying or engaged in work related to maternal, reproductive and child health in low-income settings. Typically, the Department has allocated this award to students who propose a global health related fieldwork experience in an international, resource-limited setting relevant to the student/trainee's career goals.

The Fellowship of up to $4,000 (USD) can be used to support travel costs, including room and board, travel health preparation, travel insurance, supplies for a particular global health project, or other expenses associated with the recipient's academic work, including tuition. Funds can be used for a project or experience taking place anytime from summer quarter 2021 up to, and including spring quarter 2022 (taking into account current UW travel restrictions and requirement for an approved travel waiver).

Applicants will be selected based on the following considerations:

- a. Evidence of applicant's commitment to the values exemplified by George Povey (social justice, gender equality and promoting maternal health in resource- poor settings), both in their previous experiences and in their proposal
- b. The strength of the project or experience proposal, and its relevance to George Povey's social justice values as described above.
- c. Applicant's record of academic excellence
- d. Evidence of promise and commitment to a career in global health

Fellowship-specific Eligibility Criteria:

- 4-6 weeks participation in a global health related-program or fieldwork experience in an international, resource-limited setting relevant to the student/trainee's career goals
- Full-time graduate or undergraduate students studying in the Department of Global Health, including MPH, PhD, DGH Graduate Certificate programs, Public Health-Global Health Majors, Global Health Minor, and students in the School of Medicine's Global Health Pathway

Supporting documentation must include:

- Signed Statement of Commitment from your host organization supervisor
- Letter of Commitment from your University of Washington faculty mentor
- Current resume/curriculum vitae
- Recent "unofficial" copy of your University of Washington transcript

All supporting documents must be submitted via Google Form with the rest of the application here:

<https://forms.gle/8z1CWUTqvLTirG9E8>

DGH Funding for Fieldwork Application 2021

II. Global Mental Health Fellowship

The purpose of the Global Mental Health Fellowship is to promote global mental health research and training by providing financial assistance to a graduate student, professional student, or medical resident who would like to work on global mental health projects in low or middle-income countries. Mental health related projects include, but are not limited to, projects that address the needs of people with mental disorders, promotion of mental health, reduction of social stigma related to mental disorders, mental health research training, and mental health policy.

Eligible applicants may be enrolled in any of the Health Sciences schools as graduate or professional student at the University of Washington and must submit a project proposal that addresses a global mental health issue or problem. Projects should be one month to three months in length and must be completed by the end of Spring Quarter 2022. The Fellowship of up to $4,000 (USD) can be used to support student travel costs, including room and board, travel health preparation, travel insurance and/or supplies for a particular global health project. The Fellowship cannot be used to cover tuition costs, school supplies, conference attendance or other non-project related expenses.

Applications will be evaluated based on the strength of the proposal, the relevance to global mental health and the applicant's academic and career goals, the significance to the host organization and the commitment by the host organization supervisor and a University of Washington faculty mentor. Fellowship recipients must meet all program deadlines, attend a travel preparation orientation and participate in other Global Mental Health fellowship activities. If a student is awarded and accepts the Fellowship, they must immediately withdraw their applications to other DGH fellowship or funded programs.

Considerations:

- a. The strength of the project or experience proposal
- b. The applicant's record of academic excellence
- c. Evidence of promise and commitment to a career in global health
- d. Demonstrated financial need

Fellowship-specific Eligibility Criteria:

- Identify an international experience, host organization (local or global) and host organization supervisor
- Identify a University of Washington faculty mentor to assist you with the development of a project and connect the experience to your academic program and career goals.
- Fellowship recipients will be required to present their work (in progress or completed) during at least one Global Mental Health journal club meeting.

Supporting documentation must include:

- Signed Statement of Commitment from your host organization supervisor
- Letter of Commitment from your University of Washington faculty mentor
- Current resume/curriculum vitae
- Recent "unofficial" copy of your University of Washington transcript.
- All supporting documents must be submitted via Google Form with the rest of the application here:

DGH Funding for Fieldwork Application 2021

III. Global Opportunities (GO) Health Fellowship

The purpose of the GO Health Fellowship is to provide financial assistance to a graduate student, professional student, or medical resident at the University of Washington so that they may gain valuable international fieldwork experience in global health. The funds have been generously provided by donors committed to the education of global health professionals from diverse disciplinary backgrounds.

The Fellowship of up to $4,000 (USD) can be used to support travel costs, including room and board, travel health preparation, travel insurance and/or supplies for a particular global health project. The GO Health Fellowship cannot be used to cover tuition costs, school supplies, conference attendance or other non-project related expenses. Funds can be used for experiences taking place anytime from summer quarter 2021 up to, and including spring quarter 2022 (taking into account current UW travel restrictions and requirement for an approved travel waiver).

Applicants will be selected based on the following considerations:

- a. The strength of the project or experience proposal
- b. The applicant's record of academic excellence
- c. Evidence of promise and commitment to a career in global health

Fellowship-specific Eligibility Criteria:

- Participation in a global health-related program or fieldwork experience in an international, resource limited setting relevant to the student's/trainee's career goals
- Minimum duration of six weeks abroad
- The project or experience must be at a UW-affiliated international entity (eg. NGO, university, Ministry of Health or other research institution, etc.)

Supporting documentation must include:

- Signed Statement of Commitment from your host organization supervisor
- Letter of Commitment from your University of Washington faculty mentor
- Copy of your current resume/CV
- Recent "unofficial" copy of your University of Washington transcript.

IV. Stergachis Endowed Fellowship for International Exchange

The purpose of the Stergachis Endowed Fellowship for International Exchange is to promote global health by providing financial assistance to graduate or professional students who would like to work on public health projects in developing countries, preferably in Uganda.

Eligible applicants may be enrolled in any of the Health Sciences schools as graduate or professional school at the University of Washington and must submit a project proposal that addresses a global health issue or problem. Projects should be one month to three months in length and must be completed by the end of Spring Quarter 2022. The Fellowship of up to $4,000 (USD) can be used to support student travel costs, including room and board, travel health preparation, travel insurance and/or supplies for a particular global health project. The Fellowship cannot be used to cover tuition costs, school supplies, conference attendance or other non-project related expenses.

Applications will be evaluated based on the strength of the proposal, the relevance to global health and the applicant's academic and career goals, the significance to the host organization and the commitment by the host organization supervisor and a University of Washington faculty mentor. Fellowship recipients must meet all program deadlines, attend a travel preparation orientation and participate in other Stergachis Endowed Fellowship for International Exchange activities. If a student is awarded and accepts the Fellowship, they must immediately withdraw their applications to other DGH fellowship or funded programs.

Fellowship-specific Eligibility Criteria:

- Identify an international experience, host organization (local or global) and host organization supervisor
- Identify a University of Washington faculty mentor to assist you with the development of a project and connect the experience to your academic program and career goals

Supporting documentation must include:

- Signed Statement of Commitment from your host organization supervisor
- Letter of Commitment from your University of Washington faculty mentor
- Current resume/curriculum vitae
- Recent "unofficial" copy of your University of Washington transcript.

V. Thomas Francis, Jr. Global Health Fellowship

The purpose of the Thomas Francis, Jr. Global Health Fellowship is to promote global health by providing financial assistance to graduate or professional students who would like to gain practical global health field experience in international and/or underserved community settings. Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr. taught Dr. Jonas Salk the methodology of vaccine development, and designed and directed the Salk polio vaccine clinical trials.

Eligible students may be enrolled in any graduate or professional school at the University of Washington, and must submit a project proposal that addresses a global health issue or problem. Projects should be one month to three months in length and must be completed by the end of Spring Quarter 2022. The Fellowship of up to $4,000 (USD) can be used to support student travel costs, including room and board, travel health preparation, travel insurance and/or supplies for a particular global health project. The Fellowship cannot be used to cover tuition costs, school supplies, conference attendance or other non-project related expenses.

Applications will be evaluated based on the strength of the proposal, the relevance to global health and the applicant's academic and career goals, the significance to the host organization and the commitment by the host organization supervisor and a University of Washington faculty mentor. Fellowship recipients must meet all program deadlines, attend a travel preparation orientation and participate in other Thomas Francis, Jr. Global Health Fellowship activities. If a student is awarded and accepts the Fellowship, they must immediately withdraw their applications to other DGH fellowship or funded programs.
