

MISSION

To coordinate information about global health education, training, research, funding, and exchange for the University of Washington campuses and local and international institutions and organizations.

To connect undergraduate, graduate/professional students, faculty, staff, individuals, community leaders, individuals, and organizations.

To catalyze international, interdisciplinary collaboration and exchange.

WHAT WE DO

- Serve as the main networking hub and information clearinghouse for the UW, Department of Global Health (DGH).
- Manage the DGH study abroad and exchange programs, and fieldwork scholarships, including the Global Health Immersion Program, the Global Health Clinical Elective, and the Global Opportunities (GO) Health and Thomas Francis, Jr., Fellowships.
- Coordinate travel preparation orientations for global health students.
- Provide information and referral to global health contacts, career networks, listservs, and websites.
- Provide individual student advising and work with global health student organizations.
- Coordinate DGH events, conferences, and special courses and seminars.
- Promote work of our faculty, staff, students, and colleagues through community events and social media.

Since 2003, hundreds of students, residents, and researchers have participated in our international field experience and exchange programs in global health. These experiences have ranged from clinical observation and research to public health practicum and community-based projects.

The Department of Global Health offers opportunities through the Global Health Resource Center to undergraduate, graduate, and professional students as well as residents and post-doctoral fellows.

Please visit our website under “Funding and Fieldwork,” or send us an email to learn more about global health opportunities and upcoming information sessions.

We also coordinate:

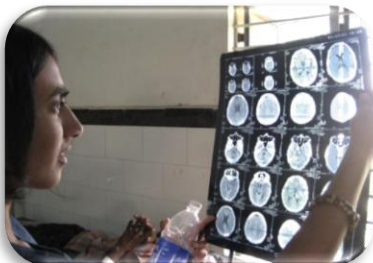

Global Health Pathway

Certificate-based program for medical students interested in global health.

GHRC Advisory Board

A campus-wide group of faculty, staff, and students from across disciplines that meets monthly to advance global health collaborations.

Undergraduate Global Health Minor

Medical student Sophia Purekal on a clinical rotation in India.

Study Abroad & Exchange: Find a program or experience abroad in the global health field and identify resources for travel preparation.

Career Guidance: Connect with mentors and career contacts in global health as well as seek assistance with career development and job search.

Referrals: Local and global health organizations and colleagues.

Our website contains information regarding funding and fieldwork, lectures and conferences, career resources, and reading and film recommendations.

Students visit our annual Career Fair.

The GHRC works with faculty, staff, and students to coordinate global health-related events on campus including, but not limited to:

- The Western Regional International Health Conference
- Principles of STD/HIV Research Course
- World Health Cinema
- Faculty Research Seminars
- Various cross-campus and community-wide collaborations.

We co-sponsor events throughout the year with outside departments and organizations. Please contact ghrc@uw.edu for more information.
